

Easily accessible food sources attract gulls. Refuse bins are one of the main sources for food and advice to business on the storage of waste is key to reducing these opportunities.

The gull eggs are removed and replaced with the same number of plastic eggs. These are weighted with sand to behave just as the real eggs do during incubation. Once the eggs fail to hatch the nest is abandoned at the end of the season.

Plastic eggs in situ.